ERIC SWINDERMAN

Eric's performances are the kind that jazz lovers crave: the emphasis is on mellow sounds, but, at the same time, he swings. He has enjoyed extensive engagements at Ivey's Solomon Grundy's, and Pasand's in San Francisco CA. In addition to critical acclaim for his solo work, Eric is also in demand as a sideman for Bay Area celebrity singers. You've seen and heard Eric on television, radio, and stage since 1980. Eric is a dynamic musician and composer. Yet perhaps, his most striking talent is his ability to create an intimate and genuine rapport with his audience. Check out Eric's latest CD with vocalist Brenda Boykin called "Conversations In Time."

SAM BEVAN

Since moving to San Francisco in 1999, Sam Bevan has established himself as one of the most versatile and creative bassists in the Bay Area music scene, joyously intermingling jazz, funk, r&b, folk, Afro-Cuban, Afro-Venezuelan and West African disciplines. The foundation was laid for Bevan's career when he began classical piano lessons at the age of four. Sam's adoption of the electric and acoustic bass followed periods playing jazz and classical piano, singing professionally (he still sings when he solos on bass) and getting a BA in French. After attending college in Salt Lake City, he now resides a few miles from where he was born in Oakland, California.
